

HELPING YOU PROTECT YOUR PEOPLE, ASSETS & LIVELIHOOD

Fire protection should be about more than just providing your fire extinguishers. More than anything else, our priority is to ensure people's safety. There is nothing more important than a life. Your workforce ARE your biggest and most important asset. If you do all you can to protect and look after them, you'll also be protecting the rest of your business and, at the same time, be increasing your chances of success and compliance with relevant legislation

MANAGEMENT SYSTEMS

Environmental Management System

We operate a comprehensive and fully documented Environmental System that is designed to the highest standards in partnership with, and audited by our independent management consultants.

We recognise that being kind to the environment is not just restricted to the householder, but affects everybody including industry and commerce.

The maintenance side of the business does, unavoidably, generate waste, eg: Powder, Foam, Metals, Plastics and Card-board.

We believe that to maintain our position in the Fire Protection Industry we must continue to search out new and cost effective procedures and methods to offer to you, our customer, the very best service available, and by maintaining a comprehensive Environmental Management System, demonstrate our commitment to you and the environment we all share.

Health & Safety Management System

We also operate a comprehensive and documented Health & Safety System that is designed in partnership with, and continually reviewed and monitored by, our independent health & safety consultants.

FIRE EXTINGUISHERS AND SERVICING

DOES MY BUSINESS NEED FIRE EXTINGUISHERS?

Every business should have already been asked to consider, as part of the Fire Risk Assessment, “Does your business need fire extinguishers?” The simple answer to that question is YES. In the UK it is a legal requirement for a business or workplace to carry out a suitable and sufficient fire risk assessment of the risks of fire to their employees, and others, who may be affected by their work or business.

Even the smallest of workplaces, including where members of the public have access, are suggested to have at least one fire extinguisher but ultimately it is your fire risk assessment that should determine the risks and the number and types of fire extinguishers you need. A fire risk assessment will normally cover much more than just fire extinguisher requirements.

FIRE RISK ASSESSMENTS AND REVIEWS

Other than domestic dwellings, most other premises in the UK need a fire risk assessment by law. In England & Wales the relevant legislation is The Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005. Similar legislation applies to Scotland and Northern Ireland. You must carry out a fire risk assessment in respect of a workplace, and keep it up to date. You must also keep a written record of your fire risk assessment if your business has 5 or more people. If you don't comply with fire safety regulations, you can be fined or even be sent to prison in some circumstances.

The person(s) who has control of the premises is known as the ‘responsible person’ for fire safety purposes in respect of a business, or in other non-domestic premises. You are the ‘responsible person’ if you are, the owner, the landlord, the employer, the occupier, have paying guests or have control of the premises. This could be, e.g. a manager or an agent who has control. Sometimes there can be more than one ‘responsible person’

We carry out Fire Risk Assessment services for organisations covering a wide range of premises and workplace including:

Industry
Catering
Offices
Public Sector
Health Organisations

Care Homes
Surgeries
Shops
Factories
Garages & Petrol Stations

Pubs & Clubs
Chapels & Churches
Recreational & Youth Facilities
And more

Our fire risk assessors have considerable experience and we offer a full and detailed survey of the relevant premises and present any findings and recommendations in a written report that will assist you in complying with relevant legislation

FIRE SAFETY AWARENESS TRAINING & FIRE EXTINGUISHER TRAINING FOR STAFF AND EMPLOYEES

Providing fire safety training and fire extinguisher training for business owners, management and employees has become an important element of managing fire safety risks within an organisation's overall Health & Safety Management System.

Fire Risk Assessments and Reviews

Fire Risk Assessments in the Workplace

You must carry out a fire risk assessment in respect of a workplace, and keep it up to date. You must also keep a written record of your risk assessment if your business has 5 or more people.

What can happen if I don't comply with fire legislation?

If you don't comply with fire safety regulations, you can be fined, or even be sent to prison in some circumstances.

Who is responsible for fire safety and 'the responsible person'

The person(s) who has control of the premises is known as the 'responsible person' for fire safety purposes in respect of a business, or in other non-domestic premises.
